Indiana University-Media School
High School Journalism Institute
Multicultural Scholarship

for high school students to attend the
High School Journalism Institute
on the Indiana University
Bloomington campus
July 2016

Purpose
Find out if the exciting world of journalism is for you by applying for one of the student scholarships available for the summer of 2016. The program is designed to introduce you to possible journalism careers while you experience life on the Indiana University campus. During the High School Journalism Institute, you gain important knowledge and skills as you work with successful publication advisers and media professionals.

Qualifications
If you will be a high school sophomore, junior or senior during the 2016-2017 school year you are eligible. You must submit a grade transcript from a high school counselor or administrator, complete the attached application form and write an essay between 300 and 500 words long titled “Journalism’s Challenges.” All three items must be sent together and postmarked no later than Friday, April 8, 2016.

Cost
If you win a scholarship, your tuition and room will be paid for, as well as a $100 meal (debit) card, which you will receive at registration. If you plan to spend more than $100 on food, you’ll need to bring extra cash to supplement the card. You will be responsible for travel to and from Bloomington and for any spending money you might want to bring.

Expectations
Once on campus, you will be expected to follow all rules given to you by the workshop director and your counselors. Students who drive to campus will be required to park their cars for the entire session and will not be able to drive them. You will attend classes each day from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. You will also have assignments in the evening and some classes as well. You will be expected to be in your residence hall by 10 p.m.

Deadline -- April 8
Application, transcript and the essay must be mailed in one envelope to Multicultural Scholarship Program, c/o Teresa White, High School Journalism Institute, Indiana University, Ernie Pyle Hall 215A, 940 E. 7th Street, Bloomington, IN 47405. For more information: (812) 855-9822 or email: terwhite@indiana.edu. (Please wait to register for a workshop until scholarship decisions have been made.)
